

2019 SPC presidents report.

The past twelve months for the club has seen a steady attendance at meetings and participation in workshops. Internally within the structure of the club the committee has created a stable platform to build from, and with new committee members stepping up this year I expect we can see their influence in some of the decision making. As President of this Club, I hope to provide the leadership needed to guide the club in our shared interest to improve every members understanding and performance with their personal photographic outcomes.

The assessments this year have been interesting with the intent to push members to try something different without making it too difficult whereby setting subjects members would avoid rather than attempt. Hopefully next year we can continue to find subjects that allow everyone to find their favourite genres whilst encouraging new experiences in photography.

Like most clubs, there is a core group that run the events and organise the activities. I would like to thank the committee and those that have helped to organise the photo exhibitions, workshops and general administrative tasks.

I ask that all members continue to maintain an active role within the club through participation and freely giving advice to others who are still learning the ropes. It is the community within that makes it strong and sharing knowledge is a very important part of being a club.

SPC President

Dan Crowley